

Curiosity: Webcomics

This is probably going to be a real list-heavy post. Sorry in advance.

I can't even remember how I got there, but I followed a link to a webcomic called ShortPacked! last, I don't know, Thursday maybe. A few days ago. Since then I've read every single ShortPacked! strip from the last seven years. I don't even know how many that is. It updates 3-5 times each week, so at least 1000 strips. In about four days. And I'm already knee-deep in David Willis's other strip, Dumbing of Age.

And, really, these aren't the best things ever. ShortPacked! is a workplace sitcom (NewsRadio, WKRP, The Office) set in a toystore, and the topics swing wildly from one-off gags that only toy fans are likely to appreciate and heavy continuity

. It's usually at least agreeable, oftentimes fairly funny. It's an okay timewaster. But I read over 1000 of these in four days, like it was the most amazing thing ever, and this isn't the first time I've done it. Any webcomic I'm interested in, I'll just barrel through the archives as quick as I can. It's like clicking that Next Comic link is going spit out a pellet or something. I don't know, maybe I'm just on a webcomic kick. They're free, so why not just read a ton of 'em, huh?

So, yeah, webcomics. Here's a list of what I'm reading. Check them out, I can vouch that they're worth your time. If you've got any suggestions, I'd love to hear about them.

Achewood

Penny Arcade

Abominable Charles Christopher

Perry Bible Fellowship (discontinued)

Adventures of Superhero Girl

Hark! A Vagrant

xkcd

That's all I can remember right now. Anything I should be reading besides those?
